

Thirsty in Suburbia MAD LIB

Watch Out, It's World Water Day!

_____! World Water Day, an annual tradition similar to _____ always begins with (Exclamation) (a holiday)
some key water facts. Billions of people lack access to _____ water and only (adjective)
_____ % of the world's water is suitable to _____. Water is our most (number) (verb)
precious _____. More people die from _____ water than from war! Important water (noun) (adjective) issues include _____ infrastructure and the water - _____ nexus.
(adjective) (noun)
Many people feel _____ on World Water Day because they learn more about how we all (an emotion)
_____ water and how some countries, such as _____, waste water while others are (verb) (a country)
dry as a _____.
(noun)

What to expect on World Water Day: First, expect many _____ events, some of which are (adjective)
designed to _____ understanding while others are really just trying to get you to buy (verb)
_____. Watch out for politicians and celebrities, too! _____ has invited (a product) (a politician) _____ reporters to a media event at a _____ treatment plant while _____ (a publication) (a liquid) (a celebrity) and _____ will visit poor countries to help _____ wells. CNN is airing a (a celebrity) (verb) documentary titled "Water: The Next _____" and on MTV you can catch _____ on (noun) (a musician)
the "_____ for Water Live" concert. Get your wallet out because charities such as Water for (verb)
_____s will raise a _____ full of money by showing you _____ photos (living thing) (container) (adjective) of suffering children in water-starved _____. On social media, you'll see _____ (a location) (a number)
tweets with the hashtag WATER _____ or hashtag WORLDWATER _____.
(any word) (any word)
Despite all the _____ taking place, though, remember: We never know the worth of water (an activity)
until the _____ runs dry.
(noun)